

Dr. Marcel Behr

Dr. Marcel Behr is a clinician-scientist, Professor of Medicine, Director of the McGill Infectious Diseases Division and Director of the McGill Interdisciplinary Initiative in Infection and Immunity \(McGill-i4\).

Dr. Behr trained at the University of Toronto, Queen's, McGill, and Stanford. Dr. Behr's lab uses bacterial genomic methodologies to study the epidemiology and pathogenesis of tuberculosis (TB) and other mycobacterial diseases. Dr. Behr's work has been recognized by election into the Canadian Academy of Health Sciences, the Royal Society of Canada, the American Society for Clinical Investigation, and the American Academy of Microbiology.